

ATTEMPT TO KILL OIL MAN FAILS

Big Bomb Discovered in Wagon
Rut Meant to Kill John
D. Archbold.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—A daring attempt to assassinate John D. Archbold, Standard Oil magnate, at his country home near Tarrytown, became known Sunday night. A powerful bomb hidden beneath a pile of leaves on his private driveway was discovered on Saturday by the superintendent of his estate.

The bomb was placed in a wagon rut on the roadway leading from the front door of the Archbold home. It consisted of four sticks of dynamite bound tightly together with heavy wire and fitted with percussion caps. The millionaire's automobile, had it run down the driveway on Saturday morning doubtless would have exploded the bomb.

Only the fact that Mr. Archbold came to New York in his yacht on Saturday saved his life. Had he been driven to the railway station at Tarrytown his automobile would have plunged blindly into the trap set.

Strike Faction Seen In Plot.
Mr. Archbold is president of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey. The police of Tarrytown are working on the theory that the bomb was placed by members of the faction embittered by the Bayonne oil strike.

The police believe the bomb was placed by some one who had carefully studied Mr. Archbold's habits. There are two driveways leading from Broadway to the front door of the Archbold house faces to the front door.

Mr. Archbold's chauffeur ordinarily enters by the south driveway, takes the car to the garage, drives to the front stoop and leaves by the north drive with his passengers. This fact was known to the person who placed the bomb. It was hidden on the north rather than on the south drive.

A Milk for Invalids and Children

Many invalids and people with delicate stomachs are unable to drink dairy milk because under the digestive process the milk forms a cheese-like mass of curds. Etna Milk, which goes through a special process, will never form large curds in the stomach, as the butter-fat and casein have been broken up into very tiny drops. It will never cause distress to the most delicate stomach.

Mothers are fast finding out that Etna Milk is the safest milk for infants. Dairy milk is never free from germs, while Etna Milk is absolutely pure, germ-free and sterilized. It has been filtered by a special process and as it comes in hermetically sealed, sterilized cans, the mother knows that it has not been touched by human hands.

Made in the country, far from smoke and dust from fresh, pure cows' milk. No matter what milk you are now using, you should try Etna Milk in the tall can for ten cents. Many of the best grocers in the city are already supplied with it. You can recognize Etna Evaporated Milk by the picture of the beautiful Jersey Cow on the label.

Etna (Can) is manufactured by Etna Condensed Milk Co., South Bend, Ind. Distributors—Adv.
